Has COVID Impacted Your Company’s Hiring Processes?

With the Coronavirus continuing to spread, companies around the world are looking for ways to maintain efficiency, productivity and ultimately, maintain output during these odd times.

Here’s how your company can adapt to grow and overcome the uncertainties of COVID-19.

Holding Off On Hiring? Develop Employees within Your Existing Teams

• Close the skills gap by giving your workforce access to a whole breadth of training and course materials.
• Allow employees to upskill, re-skill or new skill to assure they’re the perfect fit for the position.
• Give employees opportunities to take hands-on training and courses to earn certifications, badges and even growth opportunities.
• Easily distribute specific training and resources to departments or teams.

Needing to Conduct Face-to-Face Interviews?

• Host live, face-to-face interviews with the scheduling and web conferencing tools.
• Gauge a subject’s comprehension and interest level through analyzing facial expressions and body language.
• Build interactive activities for interviewees to complete.
• Conduct on-the-go interviews with any device, from anywhere in the world.

Nurture and Support Newly Hired Employees

• Distribute employee handbooks, day-one materials and onboarding resources right to new employees.
• Host introductions and collaboration sessions with the web conferencing tools.
• Pair new hires with a virtual mentor to assist them through the onboarding process.
• Allow new employees to access company and industry news, team info and general FAQs.
